

JACK M. RAINS AN INTRODUCTION

Jack Rains served as the 95th Secretary of State of Texas and was a candidate for governor in 1990. He has served on numerous public boards, including most recently serving as the founding Chairman of the Board of the Harris County-Houston Sports Authority. Professionally, Mr. Rains is of counsel to the law firm Looper, Reed & McGraw, with offices in Houston and Dallas. He is also a management consultant to a number of companies including Ecology & Environment, Inc., a scientific environmental firm that practices on a global basis. He was a founder and remains active with Tuscany L.L.C., a merchant-banking firm, whose clients include E-Stamp, the fifth licensee in the history of the U.S. Postal Service. He was a co-developer of The Sanctuary, a gated, upscale residential enclave inside the loop in Houston and remains active in various real estate ventures. Jack Rains was also a founder and Director of Tanglewood Bank in Houston, since acquired by Northern Trust of Chicago.

After first practicing law in Houston, he was a founder and served as President and then Chairman of the Board of Directors of 3D/International, the Houston headquarter design and management firm. During his tenure, 3D/International grew to execute annually over a billion dollars (U.S.) in construction volume, generated from projects located across the United States and around the world. He accepted the “E” Award from President Reagan on behalf of 3D/International for boosting exports by over $4 Billion Dollars (U.S.).

Named to Who’s Who in American Law, American Real Estate, and Who’s Who in America and in the World, Rains has received numerous other honors. In 1998 was named an Honorary Member of the American Institute of Architect, and a Lifetime Director of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo. In 1999, The Museum of the Gulf Coast named him a “Person of Distinction”.

In 1960, Jack Rains earned a Bachelor of Business Administration degree from Texas A&M University, and named a “Distinguished Alumnus”, in 1987. He earned his Doctor of Jurisprudence degree in 1967 from the University of Houston, College of Law, and named a “Distinguished Alumnus” of the University and an “Outstanding Graduate” of the College of Law.

A native Texan, Jack Rains makes his home in Houston, as do two of his three children, their spouses and his numerous grandchildren, who are eighth generation “Houstonians”.

JACK M. RAINS;
SUMMARY OF BUSINESS EXPERIENCE

Before joining Looper, Reed & McGraw, a Texas based law firm, Jack Rains was recognized as a leader in Texas business.

After practicing law in Houston in the late 1960's, Rains was a founder and, until January of 1987, Chairman of the Board of 3D/International (3D/I), the Houston headquartered design and construction management firm. During Rains' tenure, 3D/I grew to enjoy an annual construction volume exceeding $1 billion dollars annually with projects and offices in 27 states and 12 foreign countries. He accepted the "E" Award from President Reagan in recognition of 3D/I boosting U.S. exports by over 4 billion dollars. In 1993, Rains was a founder and director of Tanglewood Bank in Houston, which grew in its first ten years to exceed $200 million in assets, having made a profit in every quarter of operations since its first quarter. In 1995, Tanglewood Bank was sold to Northern Trust of Chicago.

Rains has been active in civic affairs boosting business. He served on the boards and executive committees of the Houston Chamber of Commerce, the Greater Houston Convention and Visitors Council, Houston Advanced Research Center (HARC), Houston Economic Development Council, Houston World Trade Association and Texas Association of Taxpayers. He was a member of the Host Committee of the 1990 Economic Summit of Industrialized Nations. Jack Rains was a member of the Board of Directors in 1990 and 1991 of the State of Texas, Department of Commerce. He currently serves as a member of the Board of the World Trade Division of the Greater Houston Partnership.

As Secretary of State, Rains led Trade Delegations which resulted in over $2 billion in new investment commitments and thousands of new jobs for Texans. Rains also was the Founding Chairman of the Houston Job Training Partnership Council. He served on the District Export Council of the U.S. Department of Commerce and the University of Houston Task Force on International Business. He also served on the Task Force on International Business at Texas A&M University and has been a guest lecturer on business subjects at Baylor University, the University of Houston's Colleges of Business and Law, Rice University's Jones College of Business, and St. Thomas University.

Rains has been published on various business subjects in Texas Business, The Houston Chronicle, The Houston Post, Journal of Commerce, Texas Business Executive, Texas A&M Business Forum, Baylor Law Review, Independent Banking and the Texas Bar Journal of the State Bar of Texas. He received the "Champion of Free Enterprise Award" in 1983 from the Associated Builders and Contractors of Texas and the "InterAmerican Award" in 1987 from the InterAmerican Chamber of Commerce.

Today Rains represents various business interests as a practicing attorney with Looper, Reed & McGraw. He is also a consultant to Ecology & Environment, Inc. an environmental consulting firm.

JACK M. RAINS;
DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION EXPERIENCE

Before joining the law firm of Looper, Reed & McGraw and prior to serving as Texas' 95th Secretary of State, Jack Rains was Chairman of the Board of 3D/International (3D/I), an international design and construction management firm. Rains began his career in the design business in 1969 with Neuhaus & Taylor, Architects and Planning Consultants, a predecessor to 3D/I, where he was named managing partner. He was a founding principal of Diversified Design Disciplines Incorporated, whose subsidiaries included Neuhaus and Taylor; Chenault and Brady Engineers; Ellisor Engineers and Brooks, Barr, Graeber and White, Architects. All combined in 1977 to form 3D/International. When Rains left 3D/I in 1987, the firm's annual construction volume exceeded $1 billion dollars (U.S.) annually and the company conducted business in 27 states and 12 foreign countries, providing architectural, engineering, graphic and interior design as well as purchasing and construction management services.

Rains was the 1983 Rowlett lecturer at Texas A&M University's College of Architecture and Environmental Design. He served on the College's Development Council from 1981 to 1984 and was on the Executive Committee of A&M's Council on Visual Arts. He was a professional Affiliate of the American Institute of Architects during his tenure at 3D/I.

In September of 1997 Rains was named Chairman of the Harris County-Houston Sports Authority charged with the responsibility for developing the new sports facilities, including the $250 million Ballpark at Union Station, the then proposed $310 Million Dollar NFL football complex and rodeo facility as well as a then proposed new professional basketball and hockey complex. The three venues, and the attendant infrastructure, are expected to exceed One Billion Dollars in construction and lay the foundation for Houston's bid for the 2012 Summer Olympics. During Rains' tenure, Enron Field, later renamed, was the only retractable roof stadium delivered on time and in budget. Next Rains negotiated on behalf of the Sports Authority, an agreement whereby The Authority, The County of Harris, The City of Houston, The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, and The National Football League Franchise, should it be awarded to Houstonian Bob McNair, would all jointly fund the design and construction of a new Stadium to replace the existing Astrodome. Relying upon the strength of the Sports Authority's negotiated agreement to build a new 70,000-seat retractable roof stadium, the NFL, against all odds, awarded Houston an expansion franchise over a competing bid from Los Angeles. That Stadium opened in 2002 and a new Arena is slated for completion in 2004.

Rains, received the 1983 "Champion of Free Enterprise Award" from the Associated Builders and Contractors of Texas. He was a professional affiliate of the American Institute of Architects. He is listed in Who's Who in Real Estate and has been published in Interior Design magazine. In 1995, he was named to Who's Who in Professional Design Practice. In 1997 Rains was inducted as an "Honorary Member" of AIA Houston, a chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

Today Rains' law practice includes representation of design and construction firms. He is a consultant to Ecology & Environment, Inc. environmental consulting firm.

JACK M. RAINS;
SUMMARY OF
INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS EXPERIENCE

For over twenty-five years, Jack Rains has been active in international affairs. He has provided leadership in the public and private sector to enhance world trade and cultural exchange.

Before returning to the practice of law in 1989, Jack Rains served as Secretary of State of Texas from 1987-1989 and frequently represented Texas in international affairs. Before his gubernatorial appointment and senate confirmation, he was a founder and Chairman of the Board of 3D/International (3D/I), the Houston headquartered design and management firm, which practiced on a global basis. 3D/I operated offices in the Middle East, Far East, Europe, and Latin America as well as across the United States. During Rains' tenure, the construction volume exceeded one billion dollars (U.S.) annually.

A past director of the Houston World Trade Association and former Chairman of the Houston Chamber of Commerce's International Business Committee, he chaired the Chamber's International Council. He was a member of the Host Committee for the 1990 Economic Summit of Industrialized Nations. He currently serves as a Director of the World Trade Division of the Greater Houston Partnership.

Jack Rains has long supported cultural exchange between nations. He served as a member of the Advisory Board for the International Institute of Education and as a Trustee for the Center for International Business. He chaired the Houston Committee to honor the Fourteenth Century of Islam. He has been a guest lecturer on international affairs at the University of St. Thomas Center for International Studies, Rice University's Jones' School of Graduate Studies, the Colleges of Business at Baylor University, the University of Houston and Texas A&M University.

Listed in Who's Who in the World, Jack Rains has been published on international matters including: "International Trade: The Key to Prosperity for the United States and Texas," Texas A&M Business Forum; and "A Houstonian Blasts U.S. Attitude Toward Foreigners", published in Texas Business. He was an advisor to Texas A&M University's International Conference on Food and Water and was a member of the University of Houston's International Advisory Council.

As a member of the Board of Directors of the Department of Commerce, of the State of Texas, Rains was one of the leaders of the delegation opening the Department of Commerce's European Office in Germany and contact offices in Brussels, Paris and London. He played an essential role in the revitalization of the State of Texas' office in Mexico City.

As Secretary of State of Texas, Jack Rains lead many trade delegations. His contribution has been publicly acknowledged in connection with investment commitments of over $2 billion dollars (U.S.) in new investments and thousands of new jobs for Texans.

On behalf of 3D/I, Jack Rains, as Chairman of the Board, accepted President Reagan's "E"

Award for boosting United States exports by over four billion dollars during a four-year period. Those exports translated into 140,000 jobs for Americans, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce estimates.

The InterAmerican Chamber of Commerce gave Jack Rains its "InterAmerican Award" for his activity in boosting international trade and promoting cultural exchange between the United States and Latin America.

Today, as a practicing attorney with Looper, Reed & McGraw, Rains is actively engaged in international transactions. He is a consultant to Ecology & Environment, Inc., a global environmental consulting firm. He also serves on the board and executive committee of the Houston 2012 Foundation, the committee formed by the city of Houston to bring the 2012 Summer Olympics to Houston.

JACK M. RAINS;
SUMMARY OF
MEDICAL AND RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Jack Rains has a long record of service and support of medicine and research. He served as a Trustee for the Baylor College of Medicine. He also served as a Director of the Texas Medical Center, the coordinating body of the 670-acre campus location for the 50 plus institutions that comprise the Center. He was also a member of The University of Texas Cancer Foundation Board of Visitors.

Rains was a Founding Director of the Houston Advanced Research Center (HARC), a consortium-linking business with Texas universities. He also served as Chairman of the Academic Task Force of the Target 2000 Study of the Texas A&M University System.

In 1987, the National Jewish Center named Jack Rains “Humanitarian of the Year” for Immunology and Respiratory Medicine. In 1988, Rains served as a member of the Senate Task Force on Space, Science, and Technology for the State of Texas.

Today as a practicing attorney with Looper, Reed & McGraw, Rains is actively involved in representing various clients in the health care industry and other high technology ventures. He was a principal shareholder and active in the creation of E-Stamp Corporation, creator of the first personal computer/Internet based postage system authorized by the U.S. Postal Service.

JACK M. RAINS;
POLITICAL EXPERIENCE

Appointed by Governor William P. Clements, Jr. as Texas' 95th Secretary of State and confirmed by the Senate, Rains served during the 70th and 71st Legislature and as Chief Elections Officer of the State of Texas during the 1988 Super Tuesday primary and November general election. He also chaired the Governor's Task Force on Campaign Finance Reform.

Jack Rains has been active in politics since 1964. In 1984 and 1985, he directed the political activities of the Houston Chamber of Commerce. In 1982, he served as Regional Chairman for the Texas gubernatorial campaign of William P. Clements, Jr. and, in 1986, as State Co-Chairman of Governor Clements' successful campaign. Rains has been active in the campaigns of United States Senator Phil Gramm. Rains served as State Co-Chair of the Carole Keeton Rylander campaign for Railroad Commissioner of Texas and in 1997, he served as State Co-Chairman in her campaign for Comptroller of Texas for 1998. Rains has been active in both successful campaigns of Robert Eckels, Harris County Judge. Rains has been active in the successful statewide campaigns of Rick Perry, most recently in his election as Lt. Governor of Texas.

In 2002, Rains chaired the Mayoral bid of Orlando Sanchez for Mayor of Houston. Given little chance of success, and mired in third place in the field including the incumbent mayor, Rains took over and reorganized the campaign, forcing the Mayor into a runoff. Orlando Sanchez established new records for turnout among Hispanic, doubling the previous vote total and increased his vote in the runoff. Despite the effort, the power of incumbency and the support of the establishment pulled the incumbent Mayor through in an extremely tight election. Sanchez however established himself as a new political power in Texas and placed him in the position of favorite to succeed the retiring Mayor in the next election.

A fundraiser for conservative causes, Rains served as Chairman of the Victory '84 Dinner honoring President Reagan and Vice-President Bush. Attended by more than 2,000 people, the event raised more than two million dollars for the 1984 campaign in Texas. He chaired the 1985 dinner honoring retiring Senator John Tower. He co-chaired the May 1990 statewide fund-raiser for Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams that raised 1.4 million dollars. He was an active fund-raiser for the Texas State Senate candidates in the 1992 Texas election. He is a member of the finance committee for the majority whips of U.S. Congress the Honorable Tom DeLay. In 1997 then, Mayor Bob Lanier and County Judge Robert Eckels named Rains as the founding chair of the Harris County - Houston Sports Authority.

Jack Rains was involved in every George H. W. Bush campaign beginning in 1964. In 1989, Rains was named an At-Large Delegate of the Texas Delegation to the Republican National Convention in New Orleans, which nominated George Bush for the office of President of the United States of America. He went on to become the 41st President.

Jack Rains was a candidate for Governor of Texas in 1990.
